Working with
CRANSTOUN
Empowering People, Empowering Change

This agreement sets out why we have signed a partnership with Cranstoun, areas of agreement, what this agreement does not cover and what the partnership involves.

Areas of common ground:

- Both Centre and Cranstoun support focusing on harm reduction, greater use of Overdose Prevention Centres and, in the long-term, reforming drug laws within the UK.
- We both support reducing prison reoffending rates and giving prisoners a second chance.
- Centre supports the work done by Cranstoun on issues such as domestic abuse, housing, supporting young people and alcohol use.

Areas this agreement does not cover:

There are various areas where Centre has policies and Cranstoun does not. This partnership does not mean Cranstoun agrees or disagrees with these policies. However, will may work with them on these areas in the future if they do decide to support new policies.

Working together:

Centre and Cranstoun are both open to cooperation in several areas:

- Writing articles on areas where both organisations agree.
- Supporting each other on campaigns where we share policy aims. This can include signing petitions,
- Members of Cranstoun appearing on our podcast.
- Events looking at issues such as drug reform or reforming prisoners.
- Contributions for papers including joint papers or forewords.
