Date these procedures must be updated by: 01/01/2027

This document sets out the transparency rules we follow for all commissioned papers and events.

Part one

Labelling commissioned papers

We ensure all commissioned research is clearly labelled, including:

- We include a section at the beginning of papers explaining who the sponsor is. An example can be seen here: <https://centreforthinktank.co.uk/2023/11/following-the-money/>
- The individual or organisation who funds a paper will be included on the page for the paper on our website (1).
- Social media graphics about commissioned papers include the logo of the organisation or individual funding it (2).
- All work funded by other organisations will be released to the public. Papers will be released on our website, normally just after they are completed. For work such as stakeholder mapping, this will be released within a year of completion. An example of a commissioned paper released on our website can be seen here: <https://centreforthinktank.co.uk/2023/11/following-the-money/>
- We include the funders within our press releases for papers.
- Past projects are displayed on our "Work with us" page, which includes a dedicated page outlining the project. How these projects are displayed can be seen with links to individual project pages here: <https://centreforthinktank.co.uk/work-with-us/>
- Clear labelling of funders on the front page of papers (3).
- The amounts donated are included in our annual report and our "Transparency" page.

Part two

Labelling sponsored events

We ensure all sponsored events are clearly labelled, including:

- Clear labelling of funders on event pages (1).
- Social media graphics about sponsored events include the logo of the organisation or individual funding it (2).
- We make it clear at the start of events who has sponsored the event by mentioning the sponsor and their mission.
- All work funded by other organisations will be released to the public. Events will be released on our website, normally just after they are completed. An example past event can be seen here: <https://centralthinktank.co.uk/2024/06/dignity-in-dying-event/>
- We include the funders within our press releases for events.
- Past projects are displayed on our "Work with us" page, which includes a dedicated page outlining the project. How these projects are displayed can be seen with links to individual project pages here: <https://centralthinktank.co.uk/work-with-us/>
- The amounts donated are included in our annual report and our "Transparency" page.

Part three

Labelling sponsored interviews

We ensure all sponsored interviews, both those recorded as videos and audio releases on podcast platforms, are clearly labelled, including:

- Clear labelling of funders on individual interview pages (1).
- Social media graphics about sponsored interviews include the logo of the organisation or individual funding it (2).
- We make it clear at the start of each interview who has sponsored the interview by mentioning the sponsor and their mission.
- All work funded by other organisations will be released to the public. Interviews will be released on our website, normally just after they are completed.
- We include the funders in our press releases for interviews.
- Past sponsors of our interview series are displayed on our "Work with us" page, which may include a dedicated page outlining the project. How these projects are displayed can be seen with links to individual project pages here:
<https://centralthinktank.co.uk/work-with-us/>
- The amounts donated are included in our annual report and our "Transparency" page.
